Re: End the Drought Restrictions for Scott River Watershed (Klamath Basin)

Dear Governor Newsom,

We respectfully request that you immediately rescind your May 10, 2021 Emergency Drought proclamation pertaining to the Scott River watershed of the Klamath Basin. We, the undersigned, are small family farmers and ranchers, tribal members, small business owners, and community members of Scott Valley who are facing the threat of losing our homes, businesses and ultimately a way of life because of the State Water Resources Control Board's emergency drought regulation. This regulation continues this year, despite significantly improved water conditions in the Scott River watershed.

Like last year, Scott Valley farmers and ranchers are again being required to reduce their groundwater use by 30 percent—again, with no compensation. Yet, this year, the Scott River watershed is no longer in drought. Small family farms and ranches, like most businesses, cannot sustain a 30 percent loss of a critical input for multiple years in a row. Losing these farms and ranches will have a significant impact on the local economy and our local schools. Sustainable agricultural production is the lifeblood of our economy and community and also supports significant co-benefits for wildlife through our thriving working landscapes.

Due to the SWRCB's emergency regulation, Scott Valley irrigation pumps were first required to be turned off in September of 2021. No other region in California was treated this way—not even in basins that have severe groundwater overdrafts like the San Joaquin and Salinas. Scott Valley's aquifer is stable and not overdrafted, yet our farmers and ranchers are getting the harshest groundwater treatment in the state. The regulation even places limits on how much water livestock are allowed to drink. This was done only in Siskiyou County; it is unprecedented and inhumane to animals.

The regulation also sets our aquifer up for failure. It prohibits almost any water from being diverted into ditches in the winter for livestock watering. Historically, the winter use of ditch water for livestock has served a second crucial purpose: groundwater recharge.

By spreading water across the landscape in winter, when flows are abundant and plants are not demanding water, these stockwater diversions help “fill the sponge.” But the emergency regulation prohibits this filling of our aquifer, calling it “inefficient livestock watering.”

In a good water year such as this, this extreme regulation is not justified by the science. The May 1 snowpack surveys by the US Forest Service show 168% of average for snow water content. Precipitation to date in Callahan (at the head of the valley) is at 161%, while Fort Jones (lower in the valley), is at 95%. The Scott River runoff forecast for April through July 2023 is 177% of average. These figures mean there is no longer a “drought emergency” in the Scott River watershed. And the US Drought Monitor has just moved this area’s status from D1 (Moderate Drought) to “Abnormally Dry”. Notes from the Monitor show the “dry” designation is in part due to the delayed filling of Trinity Lake from its snowpack.

In addition to seeing the emergency drought proclamation lifted, we would like a chance to work on local permanent solutions to improve water use efficiency and craft alternatives that can be triggered with less disruption during future droughts. Scott Valley has a history of collaboration and coming up with ways to safeguard our open spaces and rural lifestyle. In 1980, residents voted overwhelmingly in support of the Scott Valley Area Plan, which to this day prevents the subdivision of the Valley’s agricultural lands and protects our natural resources. Also, over the past several decades, local landowners have made significant investments in improving water use efficiency.

Scott Valley has had success in the past using local collaboration to support the recovery of our Coho salmon population. Since local salmon recovery efforts began in the early 1990s, California Department of Fish and Wildlife data shows our Coho numbers have increasingly improved. Last spring, our watershed boasted a near record-breaking outmigration of Coho juveniles—juveniles that were summer reared before any emergency curtailments began (see CDFW’s 2022 Scott River Juvenile Salmonid Outmigrating Study).

In recent days, a promising new local collaboration has been forming amongst agriculture, tribes, fish advocates, and state agencies. The aim is to use specific watershed data to find solutions that are reasonable and balanced—as specified in the State Water Code. Instead of “one-size fits all,” across-the-board cuts to irrigation, we want to move toward voluntary, targeted, sustainable long-term solutions. The current irrigation cuts don’t take into consideration specific needs of fish in their various life stages; the water year type; timing and location of water use; or individual producers’ current level of irrigation efficiency.

We are family, friends, and neighbors standing together in support of Scott Valley’s small, multi-generational farms and ranches—because agriculture supports the rural community we love and want to hand down to our children. There will be dry years again. We believe we can work together to find local solutions for our aquifer, streamflows, fisheries, and agriculture-based economy. Please allow us to do that by removing the section from your Emergency Drought order that includes the Scott River Watershed.

Sincerely,

Scott Valley Agriculture Water Alliance, submitting on behalf of the undersigned Scott Valley residents (see signatures below)
